

MAGEE
— 1866 —

Magee is one of Ireland's oldest fabric mills, established in 1866, to hand-weave Donegal Tweed for the Irish and British markets. In 1900 it was taken over by Robert Temple and is still in the Temple family today.

Magee have come a long way from the traditional, hardwearing tweeds; today we are renowned internationally for our colourful and luxurious winter and summer fabrics - inspired by the rugged landscape of Donegal. As a result our clothing collections are full of heritage but with contemporary styling.
